Mobile in Culture. Warsaw supports artists

122 projects submitted to the Mobile in Culture program, aimed at developing the potential of cultural communities and the competences of cultural staff, will be supported by the Capital City of Warsaw. The city helps people involved in cultural activities, who found themselves in a difficult financial situation as a result of the pandemic.

The program, financed by the city, was met with exceptional interest - 826 applications were submitted to it. After formal and content-related evaluation, 122 winning projects were selected. The socially engaged ones were appreciated, e.g. those referring to the problems of various groups at risk of exclusion (the elderly, immigrants, etc.), as well as interdisciplinary activities combining artistic values with ecological themes, or ideas for accessible art - created with people in mind that cannot benefit from the cultural offer on a daily basis.

The premise of the Mobile in Culture program was to provide support to Warsaw representatives of the cultural community, conducting cultural, educational and popularizing activities (also on the Internet), creating creative concepts and developing competences related to cultural activities. It is especially important for people involved in cultural activities, who found themselves in a difficult financial situation as a result of the pandemic.
